WILL PRESENT PLAYS

Soldiers Thursday Night Will Perform in Three One Act Plays at Lyceum —Prominent Singers And Piano Players to Participate.

Three one-act plays, vocal and instrumental solos, followed by a dance, are offered by the soldiers of Camp Humphreys at their dramatic entertainment in the Lyceum Thursday evening. The performance, which is for the benefit of the soldiers' entertainment fund, is given under the auspices of the War Department Commission on Training Camp Activities, and is under the personal supervision of Mr. Barrett H. Clark, dramatic director of Camp Humphreys. The plays on the bill are Richard Harding Davis' military drama "The Zone Police," which has been successfully given before the soldiers at camp during the past two weeks; "Three Rogues and a Rascal," a farce; and "Crooks,"a comedy. Three or four of the best singers and piano players of the camp will perform between the acts, and the whole entertainment be followed by dancing.

Mr. Clark declared today: "It is the purpose of the commission to train the soldiers to entertain themselves, and of our particular group to form similar groups which, when they go overseas, will be enabled to give plays at any time and under any circumstances. We have already found that entertainments by the soldiers are more interesting and worth while, than entertainments which are brought to them. Our performance Thursday night is not intended primarily for the entertainment of civilians; it is only an opportunity for them to learn what we are doing in camp, and incidentally to help on the good work."

Amusements

RICHMOND—"A Soldier's Oath," one of the greatest photodramas ever produced by William Fox, has been revised, along with five others of his best productions, and will be seen at the Richmond Theatre tonight with William Farnum as the star.

One of the earlier of the war films which grew out of the world conflict, "A Soldier's Oath," set a standard for thrilling situation and absorbing heart interest which has not been surpassed since. The story, it will be recalled, relates the life tragedy of a soldier of France, who, falsely accused, is sentenced to life imprisonment for murder of his wife. How he vindicated himself forms a drama of tremendous power.

ADOPT MAN-POWER BILL

Senator Indulge in Acrid Criticism; Anti-Strike Clause Dropped.

The Senate adopted without change the conference report on the man-power bill. This last legislative step in the new law was taken too late to permit the engrossed bill to be signed by the Speaker of the House, but it will go to the President shortly after noon today and will be a law before night.

Debate on the report revolved about the action of the Senate conferees in receding from the Senate "work-or-fight" amendment.

Senator McCumber told the Congress that it feared the political power of organized labor and that was the sole reason for dropping the anti-strike provision from the bill.

"If members of the House and Senate would vote according to their honest convictions, as expressed in private conversation," he said, "a measure of this kind would have passed the Congress by an overwhelming majority a long time ago."

Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the Military Affairs Committee and the ranking member of the Senate conferees, defended the action of the conferees and said that it was futile to put further laws upon the statute books to be overridden by the construction arbitrarily placed upon them by the Secretary of War.

Senator Poindexter said that Congress was above Secretary Baker, and wanted to know if Congress passed a law, the Secretary could issue a statement setting aside the law.

"If the Secretary of War can set aside one law he can set aside another," replied Senator Chamberlain.

Senator Nelson asked if Senator Chamberlain was of the opinion that the Secretary of War, by construction or otherwise, would override any new law that Congress might pass, and put himself above Congress.

"Absolutely," replied Senator Chamberlain.

"I heartily agree with that view," said Senator Nelson. "I believe that in the present situation we are at his mercy."

RETREAT WAS HURRIED

General Von Salzmann Writes Despairingly of End of Fatherland Following British Victory.

Amsterdam, Aug. 31—Peculiar light on the reiterated German assertions that the retreat of the Teuton forces on the western front was pre-arranged and carried out according to plan without undue haste is cast by A. S. Meyer, war correspondent of the Essen Allgemeine Zeitung, who gives an account of his visit to a high staff officer of General von Hutier's army to whom he was referred for information. The officer who had not slept three hours at a stretch for days, shows traces of excessive fatigue.

"In the midst of the officer's explanatory statement," says Meyer, artlessly, "the telephone rang and news came that the enemy had rushed in on the left flank of the army of von der Marwitz and that his right flank was endangered. A sudden stream of telephone orders directed the retirement and the officer's stay was scut short.

"We had to leave hurriedly. We were to lunch with General von Hutier but during the luncheon the telephone never ceased ringing and von Hutier himself was hurriedly called away by a young orderly who was to have given us the rest of the story."

As the corerspondent does not produce it the assumption seems to be justified that there was no story that day. Such incidents do not prevent Karl Rosner, generally considered the press agent of Emperor William, from declaring that superior leadership and skill still are on the German side and the Lokal Anzeiger, of Berlin, finds it necessary to print in large cross column type this assertion from Rosner:

"Further developments may be awaited with complete calm."

On the oher hand, General von Salzmann, writing in the Vossische Zeitung, make historical appeals to Germans to set their teeth and to carry on. The German public who so often have been told that France was at her last gasp are now asked by Gen Salzmann to remember that the boundless resources of the Eentente powers lie at France's back and that even the capture of Paris and Calais would not change that fact and would not bring France to her knees.

"If we possessed those resources," Salzmann exclaims, "the Germans would long ago have been victors in Paris and all over the world."

That not being the case, Salzmann concludes his article with this statement:

"A peace dictated by the British means that the fatherland will be wiped off the map and that its sons, rich and poor, will be reduced to slavery and beggary."

An illuminating insight into Teutonic mentality is provided by the Cologne Volks Zeitung which, lamenting the terrible bloodshed and destruction caused by the war, says:

"Much as we detest is as human beings and as Christians, yet we exult in it as Germans."

Twelve hundred German mutineers have joined forces with an armed peasant body and attacked the German froces in the region of Dymera, 24 miles from Kief, according to a Russian wireless dispatch from Moscow. Fierce fighting has taken place between the Germans and the peasants and there have been heavy losses on both sides.

Each individual's own conscience must be his judge in the matter of using his automobile, motorcycle or motorboat on Sundays, which are interdicted east of the Mississippi River for motoring by patriotic appeal of the United States Fuel Administration. That was the final interpretation of Dr. Harry A. Garfield, Federal Fuel Administrator, yesterday afternoon, in a discussion of what vehicles might be used in certain circumstances. No person in actual need of the use of a motor conveyance is under moral obligation to deny himself that facility; every person who is not in actual need of a motor conveyance, who can reach his destination by other means or can postpone his travel, is distinctly under moral obligation to forget the motoring, that gasoline may be assured for the allied drive.

By a vote of 217 to 22 the House of Representatives yesterday receded from its position that the half-and-half plan be eliminated from the District of Columbia appropriation bill, which has been deadlocked in the two Houses of Congress for more than two months.

"STAND OR FALL FIGHTING"

It seems to be getting into the German newspapers, and thence it may be expected to reach German minds, that Germans must "stand or fall fighting," in other words, that they can't precipitate the greatest of all wars on the world and when they find themselves defeated, get out of the scrape on the basis of giving up a small part of their plunder.

They have been laboring under the delusion for three years that the Allies would eventually get so tired of the war and be so discouraged over the prospect, that they would be willing to settle on the basis of letting Germany have most of the results of the war in consideration of its conceding a little of the results of it.

There never was any basis for this delusion, not even when Russia was dropping out of the contest and leaving France and England to face Germany. The notion has been imbecile since the United States not only entered the war, but proved that it could get a great army of the finest fighters in the world to Europe. If the Germans are getting over this notion, and are beginning to face the facts, much progress has been made, for they must now understand that if they do not wish to be exterminated they must find some means to make their Government sue for peace. The German people have got to decide whether they will go on dying for the Hohenzollern family, or whether they will stop. Their Government is not going to get a compromise peace for the German people. They must give up, or go down.

Advices from Germany, published today, show the seriousness of the situation in that country. Representative papers as well as representative Huns boldly attack the Hohenzollerns, and in some cases utter words which three years ago would have been regarded as high treason. The Germans themselves now realize that the dynasty must step down and out.

THROWING STONES

Thowing stones is a pastime which has been indulged in from time immemoial. Many of the cases investigated by the Police Court during a year have their origin in this species of disorder. The accused are generally young people, although at times some of the defendants are old enough to know better. There was a case in the Police Court yesterday in which a resident of north Washington street charged boys with throwing stones against this house. In the vicinity of the Lee School, where the playground is situated, much annoyance is caused residents of the neighborhood by youngsters who seem to think that throwing is one of their privileges. A house in that locality was recently damaged to the extent of many dollars by parties who broke the glass in the front door and inflicted other injury.

A mayor of Alexandria in the remote past seems to have taken considerable interest in bringing to the book such buffianism. The following advertisement appeared in the Alexandria Gazette on Monday, April 11, 1831:

PROCLAMATION

TWENTY DOLLARS REWARD

Whereas, on the night of the first of this month some villain threw a stone through the window of the house occupied by Mrs. Eliza C. Porter, which struck her on the face and was near depriving her of life, the above reward will be given for such information as will lead to the apprehension, conviction and punishment of the perpetrator of this nefarious act

Given under my hand April 9, 1831.

JOHN ROBERTS, Mayor.

GHASTLY PICTURE OF WAR

Bapaume, which ,like Albert, has been reclaimed by the British, is a heap of ruins, a grewsome illustration of the wrath of modern warfare. In the cross-tides of the battle this town has been the target for both artilleries for weeks. The cathedral walls resemble the fragments of some feudal castle. The work of filling gaps and gathering bodies is now in progress. The ruined town presents a ghastly picture of war.

The statue of the Virgin, which for months has been dangling at a dangerous angle upon the tower of the wrecked cathedral, had been looked upon by the soldiers and peasants as a "war thermometer," the gradual downward bend giving rise to the prophecy that when the statute fell by its own weight the war would come to an end. But a shell finally tore it to fragments—and the war in all its hellish horror rages on.

Another awe-inspiring sight is the ancient cemetery close by the ruined town. Shells have splintered many an epitaph stone and have broken and overturned many an iron tomb ripping open gaping holes.

WOMEN IN THE ROUND HOUSE

Thursday afternoon a colored woman, attired in a mans' overalls, appeared at the station house and applied for a warrant for the arrest of another colored woman and her husband on the charge of assault.

The defendants were brought before the bar at seven o'clock when it was found that it was a case of six of one and half dozen of the other, and nominal fines were assessed against the trio.

During the investigation of the case shown that by the scarcity of men colored women are now being used in the round house of the Southern Railway to wipe engines, work in ash pits, etc. Some of these dusky females wear men's overallse while so engaged.

During the past few years the glass works in Alexandria have employed colored women, and they are engaged in divers occupations hereabouts which in bygone days were filled only by men.

Before the close of the war experience will show that women can work at many callings supposed to be only for those of the masculine gender, and it may prove difficult to induce them to relinquish their occupations when the men shall have returned to their homes.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED

The world war which is still raging in all its intnesity has brought many changes upon our planet. In the Orient from time immemorial women have been made to bear much of the heat and burden of the day while engaged in what are generally masculine occupations, and in places in Europe females have long since performed duties which would have seemed strange in the United States. Scenes have changed in our own land during the past two or three years, and women are now engaged in occupations hertofore filled by men.

In many places in the land women out of prominent families are working in factories and other places with men, manifesting their patriotism by their readiness to do anything calculated to aid in winning the war. An item elsewhere tells us that Mrs. Westmoreland Davis, the first lady in the Old Dominion, with Mrs. State Senator James E. Cannon are now employed in the munition plant at Seven Pines.

In a gingham frock and carrying her own lunch, Mrs. Davis Thursday began her training to learn how to do her part along with other women and girls who are now making charges for American artillery at the United States Bag-Loading Plant No. 3, at Seven Pines. With Mrs. Cannon and other pupils, Mrs. Davis will enter the school of instruction and complete the course now being followed by them.

GOD HELP US!"

Falling back before the slow moving but ceaselessly advancing hosts of British, French, Aemricans, the German foe prays to God for help.

"God help us" screams the frightened Baron von Ardenne, Hun general.

They stand deep in the blood of slaughtered babies, noncombatant men, women, nurses, wounded, and beg for God to help them!

They stand convicted of crimes unmentionable and pray for God's help!

They wallow in scenes of their horrible depravity and cruelty and plead with God for help!

They bring to the world the most awful of all wars and hope that God will help!

They violate their most sacred pledges and call upon God for help!

They tear down altars and demolmolish churches and expect God to help them!

They kill clergymen, and violate the sisterhood of the church—and pray God to help them!

They steal the graven images from cathedrals and cast them into cannon, yet pray to God for help!

They enslave a captive people and beg God's help!

They torture prisoners and innocent women and children—but pray to God for help!

And they are not repentant, yet pray for Gods' help!

They are not willing to end their riot of barbarian lawlessness but pray for God to help them!

The God we have come to know and worship is not the accomplice of the murderer, the robber, the ravisher, the Hun!—Washington Herald.

HOW TO CUT AND DRAW

A Simple Method That Makes the Best of An Unpleasant Job—The Quickest And Easiest Way to Get a Chicken Ready for Cooking And Canning.

Cleaning chickens—the housewife's everlasting bugaboo—loses half its terrors when done by this quick and economical method. There is a real art in drawing and cutting up a chicken for cooking or canning. By carefully following the directions given here, the entire digestive tract is removed without coming in contact with the meat; and the flesh and bones from a whole bird may be fitted neatly into a quart jar.

The bird should not be fed for 24 hours before killing. It should be killed by sticking in the roof of the mouth and picked dry. When the feathers have been removed and the pin feathers drawn, the bird should be cooled rapidly. As soon as it has been properly cooled it should be singed and washed carefully with a brush and light soap suds, if necessary.

Cutting Up And Drawing

1. Remove the wings after cutting off the tips at the first joint.
2. Remove the foot, cutting at the knee joint.
3. Remove the leg at the hip or saddle joint.
4. Cut through the neck bone at the head with a sharp knife, being careful not to cut the windpipe or gullet. With the index finger separate the windpipe and gullet from the neck, and cut through the skin to the wing opening. Leave the head attached to the windpipe and gullet and loosen these from the neck down as far as the crop.
6. With a sharp-pointed knife cut around the shoulder blade, pull it out of position and break it.
7. Find the white spots on the ribs and cut along them through the ribs. Cut back to and around the vent and loosen it.
8. Leaving the head attached, loosen the windpipe, gullet and crop, and remove the digestive tract from the bird, pulling it back toward the vent. Remove the lungs and kidneys with the point of a knife and cut off the neck close to the body.
9. Cut through the backbone at the joint or just above the diaphragm and remove the oil sack.
10. Separate the breast from the backbone by cutting through on the white spots and break.
11. Cut in sharp at the point of the breast bone, cutting away the wishbone with the meat.
2. Cut the fillet from each side of

VIRGINIA NEWS

John L. Taylor, deputy city treasurer, of Danville, had a close call with death Wednesday when an umbrella he was carrying came in contact with a swinging cable through which 4,000 volts of current was flowing. He was knocked unconscious and came to in fifteen minutes but was so weak it was some time before he could get up. He was crossing the main line of the Southern Railway to see a tenant on his farm and did not see the wire, which operates the electric signal system as far as Monroe. The cable struck the crown of his hat and, in lifting his hand to prevent it falling, the street ferrule of the umbrella hit the wire. He believes that he was saved because he had hold of the wooden handle of the umbrella. Examination of his umbrella showed that the current had fused it at the point of contact.

Robert Cain, colored, shot his wife and then raising the pistol to his head blew his brains out Wednesday afternoon in Norfolk. Lillian Cain, his wife, died later in the day. It is said that Cain and his wife had been involved in a heated argument, during the course of the day. She had gone to a magistrate and procured a peace warrant for her husband.

While on a trial trip from Philadelphia to Hampton Roads, one of the government's largest airplanes fell into the Chesapeake Bay, four miles from Smith's Island, Thursday morning, and three tirmen had a thrilling experience. The machine was being piloted by Lieut. Davis. A severe squall suddenly arose when they were one-half mile from shore, causing the pilot to lose control. The machine fell a distance of fifty or seventy-five feet, landing on one wing, and rendering it useless. When it was discovered the machine could not ascend. Lieutenant Davis and the machinist swam to shore to call for assistance.

The merchant ship Lynchburg, the first vessel built by the Emergency Fleet Corporation to be named for a Virginia city, was launched this morning at 8:39 o'clock at Pusey & Jones' shipyards, at Wilmington, Del. Miss Mary Archer Glass, daughter of Representative Carter Glass, of Lynchburg, christened the vessel. The Lynchburg is a 4,000 deadweight ton vessel.

Agents of the American Express Company and Charlottesville police believe they have run into a nest of robbers on this division. Last week three young men were arrested, charged with taking valuables from the express office at Union station. Two of the number, John Davis and William Wheeler, were held for the grand jury. Various articles found in their rooms were said to have been stolen from missing packages. Your Winter's Coal Supply

On account of rulings of the U. S. Fuel Administration, it seems doubtful if Virginia will receive sufficient anthracite coal to supply the demands. If present rulings are maintained, this shortage will be very great in Alexandria and we earnestly advise our customers to put in a reasonable amount of bituminous coal as a safeguard against a coal shortage next winter.

We are now securing some very fine bituminous coal which we believe will work in all characters of coal burners but the ratrobe stoves.

FROM OCEAN TO MOUNTAIN.

Correspondence of The Gazette.

Your correspondent having said good-bye to Atlantic City and ocean bathing for this vacation season, now finds himself comfortably situated at the old town of Woodstock, the county seat of Shenandoah, one of the leading counties of the far-famed Valley of Virginia, one hundred miles distant from the ancient City of Alexandria, along the line of the Manassas branch of the Southern Railroad. It's attractions as a suitable place for spending a porton of our vacation were made known to us by our friend, the Rev. Charles E. Clarkson, who was one of the students at the Episcopal Seminary near your city, and is now minister of Emmanuel Episcopal Church in Woodstock, and also the Episcopal Church at Mount Jackson, twelve miles up the Valley.

The chief attraction of Woodstock, and this is always of the highest consideration, is it fine pure water, which comes from copious springs on Massanutten Mountain, about three miles east of the town. To our mind it seems as good in quality as the water supplied now at the Seminary and High School, and that is saying a great deal for it. Of course Woodstock is not rated by summer visitors, general, in the same category with Winchester, Berryville and Harrisburg, still we have found it a quiet pleasant resting place.

It has about 1,500 inhabitants, and hundred inhabitants, and its main business stree is the well-known Valley pike forming a part of the great highway from New York to Atlanta in these days of automobile traveling, and in the days of the past, the noted artery of travel by carriage, and wagon trains full of the products of the fertile country between Winchester and Staunton. It is also, like the rest of the country hereabout, filed with stern and gloring memories of the Civil War as they gather around General Jackson, supreme in strategy, and the Knightly Ashby, with other leaders under Jackson, on the Confederate side, whose names will always stir the heart of Virginia and the South. But the history of Woodstock goes back to the colonial and Revolutionary period. It was originally one of the villages and towns of Old Frederick county, for Old Frederick County comprised what is now Frederick, Rockingham, Shenandoah, first called Dunmore county; Jefferson, Berkeley, Morgan, Hampshire, part of Hardy, these five now in West Virginia; part of Page, and finally Clark and Warren counties.

This territory, in the earliest days, was part of Orange county, which also included Augasta county; Frederick was set apart from Orange by the House of Burgesses in 1738, but as the population was then so small it had no court until 1743, so from 1738 until 1743 it remained practically a part of Orange county.

It is well known that a great proportion of the settlers of this part of Virginian were Germans. Accordingly, it is not surprising to find that Woodstock owes its foundation to the old German settler, Jacob Miller or Mueller, who was the first possessor of the property where the town now stands, and encouraged many of his friends to settle on this spot between 1730 and 1750. The village was first called Miller's Town, but in the year, 1761, the founder had it incorporated under its present name of Woodstock. As it stood on a well-traveled road it grew and prospered, and became a place of importance.

When Dunmore county was set off from Frederick, in 1772, it was made the county. At first the citizens approved the rule of Lord Dunmore, the last British governor of Virginia, but afterwards condemned his arbitrary policy, and in 1777 requested the House of Burgesses to change the name of the county to Shenandoah, after the beautiful river which waters the Valley of Virginia. This was done, as most of us know today.

The German language and customs prevailed in Woodstock, although there were English settlers in that part of the Valley, until the days of the Rev. Gabriel Peter Muhlenburg, who is so celebrated in the history of this town, and of the Revolutionary War. He was ordained to the Lutheran ministry in 1768 and served churches in New Jersey for several years. He came to Virginia about 1772 and did all he could to harmonize the German and Swedish church elements, as well as those of the English. Accordingly, he deemed it best, as the Swedish and English churches held to the order of Bishops, to be ordained by a bishop. But as the English church was established by law in the Colony of Virginia, he felt that his freedom to preach and his right to receive the benefit of the payment of his salary by the tithes would be unquestioned if he were ordained by an English bishop. Accordingly, having received his proper credentials, he proceeded to England and was ordained by the Bishop of London, on April 28, 1772, in company with Messrs. Braidfoot and White, the latter being afterwards the first Episcopal bishop of Pennsylvania. The Rev. Mr. Muhlenburg then returned to Woodstock and held services in the Episcopal Church, on the very spot where the present Episcopal Church stands, and became much beloved by the people. When the call for defending their rights and liberties came, against the autocratic power of George the Third, was heard, there ocurred that patriotic act which has made Muhlenburg forever famous. After the service early in 1776, when he had preached a patrotic sermon, he threw off his clerical vestments and the congregation beheld him in martial uniform. He called upon them to follow, and on the 21st of March, 1776, commended this part of his career which ended in his promotion as a general in the Revolutonary War. He served gallantly during that war, being chiefly engaged in the campaign in the North. He laid aside his clerical duties after this, and offered himself for the United States Congress, where he served for several terms. He then became collector of the Port of Philadelphia, which he held till his death in 1804. There is a statue erected to his honor in Philadelphia, and a window dedicated to his memory in the Episcopal Church in Woodstock. Much controversy has arisen between the Lutherans and Episcopalians in Woodstock as to the sacred edifice where he performed his patriotic act, but records prove that it took place in the old Colonial Episcopal Church, which stood on the site of the present church, where your correspondent preached while in this Valley town.

20-YEAR TERM FOR HAYWOOD

I. W. W. "Uncrowned King" and 14 Chief Aids Sentenced for Blocking War Work.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—William D. Haywood, "uncrowned king" of the Industrial Workers of the World, and 14 of his chief aides in the conspiracy to overthrow the American war program, were sentenced to 20 years in the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., by Federal Judge K. M. Landis here late yesterday.

Ten-year sentences were imposed upon 33 of the organization's leaders, five-year sentences on 38, one-year and one day on 12 defendants, and ten-day sentences on two others. Cases against Benjamin Schraeger, Chicago writer, and Pietro Nigra, Spring Valley, Ill., were continued.

K. OF C. PLANNING FOR $50,000,000 WAR FUND

The supreme board of directors of the Knights of Columbus and many prominent Catholics of the United States will meet in Chicago tomorrow to make plans for the approaching campaign for $50,000,000. The convention will not adjourn until the last detail has been considered and decided upon. The campaign for funds to carry on the war work will be nation-wide.

The meeting will be representative of the Catholic population of the United States.

At least $50,000,000 will be required to carry the war work through the ensuing year. There will be no change in the policy of the organization which has been firmly and unalterably established in the war relief work now in full swing.

"Everybody Welcome and Everything Free" is the slogan of the order.

An urgent appeal for 506 additional secretaries for overseas service has been issued. The men should be American citizens over the draft age.

KEPT HER AWAKE

The Terrible Pains in Back and Sides. Cardui Gave Relief.

Marksville, La.—Mrs. Alice Johnson, of this place, writes: "For one year I suffered with an awful misery in my back and sides. My left side was hurting me all the time. The misery was something awful.

I could not do anything, not even sleep at night. It kept me awake most of the night . . . I took different medicines, but nothing did me any good or relieved me until I took Cardui . . .

I was not able to do any of my work for one year and I got worse all the time, was confined to my bed off and on. I got so bad with my back that when I stooped down I was not able to straighten up again . . . I decided I would try Cardui . . . By time I had taken the entire bottle I was feeling pretty good and could straighten up and my pains were nearly all gone.

I shall always praise Cardui. I continued taking it until I was strong and well." If you suffer from pains due to female complaints, Cardui may be just what you need. Thousands of women who once suffered in this way now praise Cardui for their present good health. Give it a trial. NC-133

Will Interest Readers of the Gazette.

Those having the misfortune to suffer from backache, urinary disorder, gravel, dropsical swelling, rheumatic pains, or other kidney and bladder disorders, will read with gratification this encouraging statement by an Alexandria man.

Walter C. Dameron, railroad brakeman, 325 N. Columbus St., says: "My back often hurt so badly I had to lay off work. After I got down I couldn't straighten up again without sharp pains catching me across my kidneys. My back ached constantly and my kidneys acted too frequently during the night, so I had to get up every little while. When morning came I felt so tired and weak I could hardly drag myself out of bed. I tried different medicines, but felt no better until I procuced Doan's Kidney Pills at Henry Callan's Drug Store. I took about six boxes in all an dsince then I have had but little trouble from my kidneys and I have felt like a different person."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Dameron had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgrs., Buffalo, N. Y.
